■ OUTDOOR EDUCATION PRIVATE INSTRUCTOR

Dear Families and Friends,

Inspired by recent events to support working families affected by this Covid-19 virus, it is now my mission to help young children maintain healthy relationships with the natural world, despite school closures. "No school" shouldn't mean "no going outside," and I am here to provide a clean and healthy space for learners to continue their education.

My name is Kayla Carrington and I am a professional outdoor educator with 5 years of in-field experience at the University of Washington Arboretum. My role there usually involves a steady combination of Family Nature Class, Field Trips, Fiddleheads Forest School, and Summer Camp programs. These programs are not operating at this time, following the same measures as Seattle Public Schools. I've been wanting to offer my services as a Private Outdoor Educator in this capacity for over a year, and now seems like an appropriate time to fire up! (See my detailed Curriculum Vitae for more on my education and qualifications.)

I am most practiced with children ages 3-6, cultivating physical and social spaces for them to learn about the natural environment. The programs I run typically attract learners who are curious explorers, perhaps driven by sensory play.

Please share with any families who may benefit from these services.

Take care,
Kayla Carrington
